FRANCE UNYIELDING AS TO SILESIA

Premier Briand Talks to Ministers for Hours, Saying Supreme Council Will Not Meet As Britain Wishes—President Presides Over Meeting For First Time Since His Election, Indicating Gravity of Situation.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, July 22.—The breach between Great Britain and France over Upper Silesia was emphasized today when Premier Briand in a speech to the council of ministers said positively that the supreme council would not meet to take up the Silesian issue until the end of August or the beginning of September. Great Britain has been protesting against further delay and demanding an immediate meeting of the supreme council.

The premier said that France will not relinquish the views that the supreme council should not meet until the committee of experts have worked out a preliminary solution and fixed the new Silesian frontiers.

President Millerand, of France, presided at the meeting. This was the first time since the administration of the Republic has presided at a ministerial council.

In view of the urgency of the international crisis the meeting was held in Paris. The ministers gathered to the summer home of the president at Rambouillet in order to give them an opportunity to canvass the situation with the president.

Premier Briand it was understood, took up most of the morning addressing the ministers. He emphasized the unshakable determination of the government to hold to its present viewpoint despite any increased opposition from London.

In the meantime the French press pointed out the dangers in Upper Silesia and support the French view that troops should be sent to "prevent German aggressions which might result in war between Poland and Germany."

Fears are expressed in some circles that if the Allies allow war to break out Russia might take advantage of the opportunity to renew her attack upon Poland. Russia has already made formal charges against Poland that the treaty of Riga has been violated by the Poles.

PESKY BED BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two-thirds are females. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year if you left one female or egg unmolested for one year? To rid the pesky bedbug, you can readily see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones. P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies as the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, fleas and ants is to use the new discovery "Pesky Devils."

Quilnets "P. D. Q." A six package of P. D. Q. makes a quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and cotes and at the same time destroy their eggs. Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free, patent in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get places and save the juice. Special Hospital and Hotel size $2.50 —makes five gallons of P. D. Q.—your druggist has it or can get it for you, or sent prepaid upon receipt of price by the Owl Chemical Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Success of P. D. Q. has caused peddlers.

Shoes Wear Out So Do Batteries!

When a pair of shoes wear out you have been notified in advance by the thinness of soles or cracking of the uppers—or some other easily recognized sign.

But when a battery wears out you may be taken by surprise, because batteries often go strong until the last minute.

The way—and the only way—to cut trouble and worry and cost to the limit is to buy the best battery—the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery. Its Threaded Rubber Insulation gives you the most miles of uninterrupted service per dollar.

CONSTITUTIONAL.

Mayor Canfield says his gag law is constitutional and has been upheld by the courts.

So was slavery constitutional and upheld by the courts.

Taxation of the American colonies without representation, was constitutional.

Many forms of tyranny and injustice have been declared by quibbling lawyers to be constitutional.

MEDDLING.

The State of New York is building and paying for a bridge across Rondout Creek. The State, through its duly authorized officials, has named this structure the Rondout Creek bridge. It is so designated on maps and plans and in official reports. The name is descriptive, accurate and suitable. It stirs up no local animosities or jealousies.

Now comes the Mayor of the City of Kingston with a proposal that this established name be changed to "Kingston-Egopus bridge," which is misleading, confusing and tending to reawaken local jealousy and friction.

"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," but why give it any other name?

None but a confirmed meddler would propose it.

TWO SPECTACLES.

When a New York press dispatch gave a brief and scorching extract from the Rev. John Roach Straton's sermon on the Dempsey-Carpenter fight most readers supposed that wild horses could not have dragged that shocked and outraged gentleman to such a spectacle. Yet the sermon itself, published in the New York Times of July 11, states plainly that Mr. Straton said the exhibition which he denounced from his pulpit: "Having witnessed it, as I did," he told his congregation, "and having studied the psychology of the crowds connected with it before, during and after the fight, the profound conviction has been forced home upon me that the whole thing proves we have relapsed into paganism." Referring disapprovingly to "the presence of members of the Roosevelt family," Mr. Straton expressed the firm conviction that "if Theodore Roosevelt had been alive he would not have gone to this disgraceful affair." Yet Mr. Straton went himself.

Nor was he willing to concede that others might have gone, as he intimated that he did, to watch the spectators and observe the psychological effect upon them, although no doubt it was the crowd rather than the fight itself that chiefly interested many of those present; for the New York preacher thus describes the great gathering: "It meant not simply the presence of one class of our defectives and moral degenerates, but it gathered all the poison elements of our modern society. The gamblers and the horse racers and the louts, the 'lighthouses,' the home neglectors, the baby killers and the pug dog nurses, the pickpockets and strong-arm men, the promoters, the plate-crats and the profiteers, the liquorites, the Amalekites and the painted Amazons, the double-livers, the society divorcees and the polygamous movie stars (whose coming was heralded across the continent), the vaudeville performer, the proprietors of the degraded theatres and all the other women exploiters, the Sabbath breakers, the church scorners and the God-delivers—yes, all of those elements who influence are making for the overthrow of our American ideals and customs were on hand in force. The poison from all over the land drained to that huge amphitheatre, and this moral carbuncle naturally came to a head at the weakest spot in our body politic—the State of New Jersey, with its pro-liquor, anti-constitution, anti-Sabbath governor!"

Like many another quite respectable person, the Rev. Mr. Straton deliberately put himself into this dreadful company, and doubtless he did so to satisfy a normal curiosity as well as to study psychology. Perhaps he also saw a promising subject for one of his sensational topical sermons. At all events he employed his eyes to such good purpose that he was able to entertain his congregation with a dramatic and picturesque account. "At times," we read, "Dr. Straton's frankness in discussing sex questions brought a gasp from his audience. It was an unusual sight to see a preacher demonstrating an uppercut from the pulpit, swinging his long left arm up in front of the congregation to show them how Dempsey laid low the Frenchman. At other times he shot his right arm out straight at the audience with an overhand motion, something like Carpenter's right, to drive home an emphatic point."

The account indicates that the listeners laughed, applauded and enjoyed themselves, but perhaps some of the more sober-minded wondered whether it had ever occurred to Dr. Straton, while discussing modern degeneracy, to ask himself whether his own pulpit had not also declined, or descended to lower levels or dignity than the standards of the past prescribed.

AGRICULTURE.

Uncle Ab says: I've seen a lot of smart farmers, but the best ones weren't too smart to learn even from city folks.

A reputation for honest weight and a uniform, high grade product is just as valuable to the farmer as to the manufacturer.

Maybe you haven't thought of a cow testing association as a labor saving device but it is. It frequently shows how to make ten cows do the work of fifteen.

The farmer who believes in playing safe is the one who is resolving about about now not to let anything prevent him from selecting his own seed corn from his own fields.

The farmers who have taken their sons in as partners instead of as hired men are chuckling to themselves when their neighbors complain about the boys leaving the farm.

Forestry is concerned with the future as well as the present. It aims to place the woodlot in its best growing condition, and to keep it in a continuously productive state.

Agriculture is of all industrial pursuits, the richest in facts and the poorest in their comprehension. Facts are like grains of sand which are moved by the wind, but principles are these same grains cemented into rocks.—Von Liebig.

FORTUNE AWAITS MISSING MAIDEN

WAS TOO FOND OF NIGHT LIFE

Daughter of Roosevelt Rough Rider and "The Rose of Cuba" Escaped From Restraint in Chicago and Cannot Now Be Found.

Chicago.—Somewhere in these United States is a seventeen-year-old miss, a Spanish-American child of romance and adventure, for whom a large fortune is waiting.

Back in Spain an aristocratic old Castilian grandfather is fretting away his last years longing for her, and here in America three wealthy uncles are seeking her to tell her that a fourth uncle has died and left her a great estate.

Helen Owen, the missing heiress, is the daughter of the late Warren D. Owen, a Roosevelt Rough Rider, who won the daughter of Don Esteban Garcia in Cuba in the Spanish-American war. Rough Rider Owen fought a duel for the hand of Senorita Garcia with her proud old father, it is stated by Clyde Owen of Pittsburgh, who is here seeking the girl, and brought her to the United States.

Uncle Leaves Her a Fortune. Since then both have died and the girl has disappeared after seventeen years of as romantic a life as her parents lived before her. The father died in April, 1920, at New Bedford, Mass., and since then the girl's uncle, Edward Owen, has died at Boston, leaving his estate to the young woman.

Assisting the Pittsburgh relative in the hunt are Perry Owen of New York and William Owen of Oak Park, Ill., all wealthy.

"After my brother Warren brought his bride, who was known as 'The Rose of Cuba,' back to the States they lived in St. Louis," said Clyde Owen. "Helen was born there. Her mother died a year later of tuberculosis, and Warren and the child wandered over most of the world for many years. Her grandfather in Spain sent agents to this country looking for her."

"Then, when she was fifteen, they settled down in Oak Park, where Warren was a painting contractor. She kept his house and had her freedom, and, inheriting the temperament of her parents, was too fond of that freedom to keep out of mischief. She was fond of cabarets, dances and the movies. So I learned she came before the juvenile authorities here."

In Home for Friendless. "The girl's father moved east and died, and she returned to Chicago to be sent to the Home for the Friendless because of her wild escapades. She was given to the care of a Mrs. Condeley, 4516 Drive avenue. She escaped through a window one night and has never been heard of since."

"My brother, Edward Owen of Boston, has died, leaving his estate to her. Wherever she is, we want her to know that we will protect her from the agents of her grandfather in Spain and that a great house, surrounded by six acres of beautiful estate, and many thousands of dollars are awaiting her."

Clyde Owen, who told this story, is an official of the Pressed Steel Car company, Pittsburgh.

The much-sought girl has changed her name from Owen to Gordon, according to the information available.

FINDS A LABELED TURTLE

Kentucky Farmer Picks Up One Upon Which His Neighbor Carved Initials Years Ago.

Lexington, Ky.—Forty-four years ago J. T. McClanahan, who at that time owned a farm near here, carved his name on the shell of a small land turtle that he had caught. He then liberated the turtle.

A few days ago Peter Sheppard, who now owns the adjoining farm, caught a turtle, and upon examining it closely learned that it was the same turtle on which McClanahan had carved his initials forty-four years ago. Recently he found another turtle on which Sheppard's father carved his name, John Sheppard, twenty-eight years ago.

The shells of the turtles had been worn almost smooth, but it still was easy to discern the carving of the names.

Duchess Wins Rain "Bet" of Half Million Francs

Paris.—As a consequence of rain Lloyd's of London lost their latest "weather gamble." They will be called upon to pay the Duchess Decazes, organizer of the great charity Paviowa fete bagatelle, at the Polo club, half a million francs.

The terms of the insurance stated that all expenses would be paid by Lloyd's if the observers stationed on the top of Eiffel tower noted more than two millimeters of rain after eleven o'clock in the morning.

At six o'clock at night the rainfall was officially reported at three and a half millimeters.

Ventilation.

If for any reason sufficient ventilation by means of windows and doors is impossible, a pitcher or pail of cold water placed on a table in the center of the room will absorb many of the impurities. This is sometimes useful in the sick room. The water should be allowed to stand not more than an hour.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius

Tact.
"Pa, what is tact?"
"I'll give you an illustration, son."
"Yes, pa."
"Tact is what prevents a gray-haired man with a wrinkled face from reminding a youthful looking woman in a knee-length skirt that they were boy and girl together."

No Not One.
"Twas the night before Christmas,
And all through the house,
Not an egg-nog was stirring,
Nor hopes of a souze."

PAPERS DAMAGING TO TUFTS STOLEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, Mass., July 22.—Violence was indirectly injected today into the trial to remove District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts when armed bandits held up and robbed two private detectives, said to be in the employ of Attorney General J. W. Allen, of papers reported to contain the deposition of "Brownie" Kennedy, former mistress of Mishawum Manor.

The detectives, George E. Kelley and Thomas J. Holmes, believe that a bullet from Kelley's revolver wounded one of the bandits as they were leaving the scene. The man fell but his companions picked him up.

The hold-up took place as the detectives were returning to Boston with papers to be used in Allen's case with Tufts. The detectives encountered a big touring car blocking the road when they stopped, and pistols were thrust at their heads. The outlaws fled the scene as soon as the papers were obtained.

KILLS WIFE BY THROWING ACID

By Telegram to The Freeman.—Buffalo, N. Y., July 22.—One of the most unusual murders in the annals of the local police occurred here when John Verosky, 27 years old, in a fit of jealous rage, according to the police, tossed the contents of two one-half pint bottles filled with a solution of carbolic and muriatic acid into his estranged wife's face while she was at work in the beauty parlors of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Thompson, at No. 242 Franklin street.

Mrs. Barbara Verosky, 23 years old, the wife, died at the Emergency Hospital last evening. Medical Examiner Dancer said death had undoubtedly been caused by some of the poison which had been thrown into her mouth. Her face was horribly disfigured.

Verosky was captured by Patrolman Thomas R. Eggleston. He was charged with murder, first degree. The young woman made her home with her parents at No. 438 Sherman street. Police learned that the couple had been married in January and separated last April.

POST MORTEM REVERIES.

Painters Uncover Sign Recalls Drink Dispensary of Quality.

"Come along, I want to show you something I'll bet you never saw before," said a policeman to a Free-man reporter a few days ago and as the two were standing at the corner of Wall and John streets, near the Crosby building. The policeman then led the reporter to the end store in the building being fitted up for shoe concern from Newark, N. J., and pointed out the word "Billiards" painted on an angle on the sidewalk back and at the left of the entrance. Wall paper that had been on the wall for two score years had been scraped off by painters and the word pointed out by the cop disclosed.

An old-time resident, who by chance was a listener to the remark by the police officer after taking a look at the word painted on the wall said: "I've seen that sign before and I'll tell you fellows about it. Over forty years ago Theron Johnston opened a saloon right here where this store is, just after this building was built and it was a dandy place with the finest fixtures of any barroom in the country. The goods he sold were always of the best and the place had such a good name business men would leave their wives outside while they'd go in and get a nip. Yes, and even some dominies used to drop in once in a while. When the Johnston opened the place he also opened a billiard room upstairs with three billiard tables and only one pool table as most of the men played billiards then. That sign billiards you see on the wall was alongside a stairway that was built by an expert stairbuilder named Scofield of Poughkeepsie, and cost a lot of money as Johnston always got the best to be had. The billiard room was finely papered, had steel engravings on the walls and the floor of the big room covered with thick oilcloth. George F. Stephan, whom the boys called Snobbles, who later managed the Hotel Metropole and other hotels in New York city, had charge of the billiard room for Mr. Johnston, but it was closed after about one year as it didn't pay. A small dumb-waiter connected the barroom downstairs with the billiard room and it carried up the famous Johnston milk punches and Manhattan and Martini cocktails to the billiard players as ordered, they being mixed by Eph Legg the bartender after "The's" formula. Let me tell you boys there are still a few residents in Kingston and vicinity, who, although somewhat affected by the Volstead blight, would be willing to take a chance on getting arrested if they could only get one more of those well-remembered milk punches flavored with about two drops of the old Medford rum that had to be put in according to Johnston's recipe."

The old-timer then walked toward the court house to get a drink of ice water, while the policeman said, "I've learned something again."

HOMESPUN YARN.

With soap so comparatively cheap it's queer there are so many homes with squeaking doors and sticking bureau drawers.

Aunt Ada's Axioms: Bringing up the children so they don't know how to work is depriving them of their rightful heritage.

Many persons have learned for the first time this summer that there is no soft drink which can equal a glass of cold milk on a hot day.

If you are bothered with the soap suds hardening and staying in the clothes in spite of rinsing, try having the first rinsing water slightly warm.

Onions are a valuable and healthful food, but the thoughtful housewife who is to have guests whose taste she does not know will not use onions in any main dish.

Home made fruit juices are particularly appreciated during the summer, but they are good the year around. Be sure you provide a good supply this season.

"Too much bother," some women say. But the fact remains that it makes for economy and appearance to have two pairs of everyday shoes which are worn alternately.

Guitar Introduced by Moors.

The guitar was introduced into Spain by the Moors about the year 1288. By the beginning of the Nineteenth century the Spanish guitar had become a fashionable instrument on the continent. Ferdinand Son, a Spaniard, brought the guitar into great popularity in England with his compositions. He succeeded in banishing the less perfect English instrument, Maure Giuliani, an Italian, was a distinguished rival of Son's. Other well-known composers were Legani, Kreutzer and Leonard Schulz. Berlioz and Paganini were guitarists of note.

1. I have tried carrying worms for bait to our country place on the coast where they are scarce, but they die. How can I feed them?
2. I have a dozen wild ducks just hatched. What shall I feed them?
3. How should poison-ivy infection be treated?

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What do you know about sweet knots? I have found aromatic knots on pine and white oaks.

With no specimen we can only guess. Our correspondent means diseased spots (similar to black knot on plum trees) caused by fungi that enter some wound in the tree and cause unhealthy conditions of the wood cells. The latter become irritated and swell, in an attempt to smother the foreign irritating substance. Sometimes a gummy substance exude (as pus or mucus do in animal tissue), and this might be fragrant, due to the ethereal oil in the walls of the wood-cells.

All members of the deer family (males) shed their antlers once a year, at about the season when the young are born. The male is much less aggressive without them, and less likely to hurt does or young. New antlers at once start looking at first like mere skin-covered knobs. They are full size by August.

3. Is the wing action of the swift understood? I believe it to be alternate and rotary. Is not the flight of the humming bird, a relative of the swift, also alternate? Ornithologists differ on this point which has never been settled positively. The majority believe the swift's flight to be alternate. But photographs of the humming bird poised on whirling wings, do not seem to indicate an alternate wing action.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"Sykes Comfort Powder has been used on this little boy with great success in keeping his skin free from chafing, scalding, rashes and sores, which is the cause of so much misery among children. In my eleven years work as a nurse I have never found anything to equal Sykes Comfort Powder for this purpose."—Lottie E. Sloper, Nurse, 1011 Pine St. Philadelphia, Pa.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in healing and preventing chafing, scalding, rashes and skin irritations is because it contains six healing, anti-irritant ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. Physicians and nurses call it "Healing Wonder."

IS NOTABLE DATE

May 23 Anniversary of Birth of English Journalism

Two Hundred and Ninety-Nine Years Ago Nathaniel Butter Got Out
First Newspaper in London.

May 23 was the 299th anniversary of the birth of English journalism. The first English newspaper was founded in London by Nathaniel Butter May 23, 1622. There previously had been from time to time efforts toward the sale and distribution of news. The Tobacco, a paper of the Chinese court, enjoyed a continuous issue from the year 1113 to 1900, when it ceased publication and gave its name to a successor published in Peking today.

Ancient Rome had its newspaper, the Acta Diurna. It was the organ of the capital, containing military reports, political comment and the latest sport "dope" concerning lions and Christians. Parents of young Romans used to hide the paper from their sons, who, strange to say, preferred to look at the feminine scandal ads rather than view the actual article always on display along the Appian way.
Sporting editions were eagerly bought by business men in the Forum. A record sale was reported the day Rome's pet gladiator, Babinus Ruthicus, swatted a full-grown tiger over the bleachers into the Coliseum. Finally, the paper with the rest of the Eternal city fell into the hands of the German invaders and soon after ceased to exist.

There were no papers during the years that followed, but toward the close of the Middle Ages there came into circulation what were known as continental news letters. These letters were unauthentic reports with no fixed date of publication, to which the early correspondents contributed stories of the Crusades, the discovery of America, or the latest anti-Semitic movements in Austria. The accounts were always highly colored and the facts distorted. The publications were never sold. They were read in taverns on the payment of a fixed sum. The writers were not held responsible and the news was little better than gossip.
From this source which had found its way into England came Nathaniel Butter's weekly.

Butter's paper was called the Weekly News, and to him goes the distinction of "printing all the news of the day upon a single sheet and publishing it regularly week by week upon fixed days and of giving it a distinctive title at a time when there was nothing that could with strictness be called a newspaper."

It was formerly stated and for a long time believed that the first English newspaper made its appearance in the year 1588. The London Museum contained copies of the old Mercury publications bearing the date 1588, but not long ago students at Cambridge discovered that these papers were forged copies, according to the Columbia Missionary. The type of printing employed in producing these papers was not invented until many years after that date. In fact, it was nearly two hundred years later.

No less a person than King Charles
I used the columns of Butter's paper.
He was probably the first of that vast army of persons who seek lost dogs through the pages of the public prints.
An old copy of the paper contains an advertisement for a strayed spaniel very dear to his majesty. A reward is offered.

Butter introduced the editorial "we"
into the newspaper for the first time.
He also employed "newsboys" who were women, to hawk the paper on the street. These news vendors were frequently interfered with by persons who sold the news booklets or pamphlets that came into use toward the close of the sixteenth century.

In his early days Butter was considered wealthy, but through misfortune he lost his possessions. He was a member of the Royalist party in England. He died on one of Prince Rupert's ships in 1649.

An Eskimo Opera.

Copenhagen opera goes recently have witnessed the production of an Eskimo opera, "Kaddars." Hakon Boerresen, the composer, has based his score on the few vestiges of ancient song which the Greenlanders possess. A group of Eskimo traveled to Denmark to assist in preparing the stage pictures, and to appear in minor roles. They carried with them a large collection of native costumes.
Mention of an opera with Greenland's icy mountains as background naturally connects India as a scene for stage entertainment. One would not be greatly surprised to learn that the next Drury Lane melodrama is to have Tibet for scene, now that the Mount Everest expedition is so much in the public eye.

Conscienceless Turks.

Recently at a fancy ball in Constantinople many Turks appeared wearing American pajamas, and when investigation was made it was discovered the Turks had raided some warehouses where garments for Armenians were waiting distribution after being sent from this country.

The Gentle Ego.

"What do you consider the ablest document in history?"
"Can't tell you now," replied Senator Sorghum. "But the typist has it in hand, and I think I will give it out to the public tomorrow."

VICTIM OF PIRATES?

This is Capt. Willis B. Wormell of Portland, Me., skipper of the fivemasted schooner Carroll A. Deering.
Last January the Deering drifted ashore off the coast of North Carolina, all sails set and not a soul or even a corps aboard. The mystery has baffled searchers for months. Now the theory is that some modern disciple of Blackbeard is practicing piracy. Capture by Bolsheviks is also put forward as a possibility.

Berlin Police Disperse Dr. Goldberg's Followers, Who Had Discarded Their Clothing.

Berlin.—The colony of cave dwellers of Berlin, which took the back to the land doctrine so literally that scores of men, women, boys and girls dug caves for themselves in the banks of the Spree just out of Berlin and discarded all modern wearing apparel, has been dispersed by the police. The colony's leader, Dr. Heinrich Goldberg, argued before a magistrate that the experiment was a simple solution of the housing and cost of living problems.

The cave dwellers began by discarding hats and shoes, but soon decided to do away with clothing altogether, and in this fashion disported themselves in the waters of the Spree or sat about their cave doors munching black bread and sausages, apparently oblivious to the crowds of sightseers which began to frequent the vicinity.

Dr. Goldberg from his abode in the "Cave of Zarathustra" issued circulars discussing the Nietzschean philosophy, anarchy, communism, the faults of the present civilization, and asking the rent weary and the work worn to "watch this colony grow."

Somebody spoiled the experiment by complaining that the brotherhood was having a deleterious effect upon public morals and calling attention to the doctor's career, which was said to have included efforts to reform England, Russia and Poland. The colony has disappeared, but its leader has become a familiar figure upon the streets of Berlin, wearing long hair and going barefoot.

WARN ARTISTS OFF GRASS

Local Color Rags Thrown in Pastures Poison the Cows, Lyme's Embattled Farmers Say.

New London, Conn.—Automobile parties passing through Old Lyme and Huntington have had their curiosity aroused by signs set up at various points along the road by owners of farms prohibiting trespass on their property "by artists." No objection to trespassing by others is made.

During the summer noted landscape artists from various parts of the United States make Lyme their headquarters, and at the end of the season their work is placed on exhibition and sold in the local art building.

This discrimination against the artists is said to be due to the farmers' contention that they have had numerous cows poisoned by getting hold of paint-enriched rags. They assert the artists who use the rags to clean their brushes and palettes after they have finished work for the day.

MONTANA GIRL PARK RANGER

Student in State College is the First Woman to Get This Forest Job.

Bozeman, Mont.—Miss Marguerite
Lindley, a junior student in Montana State college here, is the first woman ever to be named as ranger in Yellowstone National park. Word of her appointment has been received here.

Miss Lindley is anticipating no difficulty in pointing out to tourists the beauties and the wonders of the government playground, however, for the goysers and the hot springs are as familiar to her as the drinking fountains and the fire plugs are to many a city dweller. She is on terms of acquaintance with most of the birds and beasts and knows every hill and valley in the big reserve.

The new ranger's father, C. A.
Lindley, is assistant superintendent of the park and has been connected with the government service here for 26 years. Miss Lindley has spent every summer of her life in the park.

Rosamond Schuyler
and Jane

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

Mark Travis thrust his hands deep
into his pockets and began to pace his room. He had plenty of room to walk, for, besides the cot and the desk in the corner, only a chair impeded his progress. It was an empty room and an empty life, he decided wryly.

"Lonely! It reeks of loneliness!" he said to the listening walls.

As he turned he saw a square of paper lying on his floor. An envelope, he noticed. He picked it up and examined it. It was written in a forthright feminine hand in black ink on gray paper. He ripped it open jaggedly.

"My cousin, Jimmy Cosgrove, has written me that you have come to stay in the city. I should be glad if you would come to see me; have tea some afternoon, perhaps some Sunday at five. Then we can talk over Jimmy and Chicago, where
I lived as a child. Sincerely,

"ROSAMOND SCHUYLER."
Mark Travis read it through twice before he laid it down. He yanked the looped black writing and the address
engraved in blue on the gray paper.

"Good old Jim hasn't forgotten me!"
he muttered. "Rosamond Schuyler—
charming name!"

He pictured the girl with deep blue eyes and that same earnest look that Jim had.

"How jolly it would be to know someone in New York! To go perhaps to the little Italian restaurant down on Eleventh street that he had discovered and eat macaroni while the blue smoke curled thickly about them and
the clatter of plates and voices served as a background to their talk."

Life had rather lost its savor these
last three weeks alone here. Places
enough to go, and things enough to see, but always alone. No one to laugh with him, nor to make him forget that he was a stranger in a strange city.

He had come almost alone to New York—to call it cold—hard—mercennary.

"I'll go and see this Rosamond Schuyler," he said. "What a pretty name—that Rosamond—she'll be charming!"

He threw his shoulders back next afternoon as he walked up Fifth avenue in a blaze of sunshine. His tweed suit was pretty well worn, but he'd
had a shoe shine, and he carried his
fair head with an air and swung along, feeling for the first time that he was a part of the life of the city.

Instead of being just the newest man
in Gresham & Minor's.

But when he turned east at Fifty-
third street and found that the house
was an imposing brownstone one, with dignified curtains of cream that shut off the windows and an air of admitting only the best society, he hesi-tated.

That was the number all right, but would he go? Perhaps she wouldn't be his kind at all.

But he found himself climbing the
steps and ringing the bell as though he were a dummy. Once he had said
"Miss Schuyler" to the stony-faced individual who must be her butler, he knew he was in for it.

As he crossed the thick rug and
came into the dim, beautiful drawing room he rued the day he had come.

He was aware of rugs that his feet melted into and gleaming furniture and color and flowers. He sank down into
a great armchair, trying to feel at ease and cursing his stupidity.

Then he saw that there was some one else in the room. A girl silhouetted at the window was playing with
the tassels of the curtain; her slim figure in black and delicately outlined.

Mark Travis forgot the beautiful
room and the luxury and wealth, for
he saw that she was sweet-looking and
her lashes were wet with tears.

"Tim Mark Travis," he said, rising and taking the hand she held out to him.

"Oh, yes," her voice fluttered, and
he saw she was rather shy and frightened of him. "I—I heard about you."

He heard his own voice talking and then the girl's. She had gray eyes instead of blue and her brows were dark,
and had a charming way of lifting.
She smiled once and he saw a dimple peep out near her mouth. Then he forgot everything but the desire to take away that unhappy look about her eyes.

"You've just come to New York, haven't you?" she asked, "and will you have one lump or two?" she handed the silver teapot so skillfully and passed him a white cup delicately fragile.

"Have you been lonely?" she questioned, "it's so hard at first—"

And Mark Travis found himself telling her about his work with the old
lawyers and how desolate he had felt,
while she pushed the heavy carved
box of cigarettes toward him and beamed. "Won't you smoke; I like the smell so—"

But in a little pause his eyes rested on the beautiful room, the great carved mantel that must have cost
thousands of dollars and the long reclining sofa with its two lamps.

This girl and he were as widely separated as though they lived in different worlds—he couldn't ask her to dine with him at a 60-cent Italian restaurant, nor sit with him in the balcony
—nor ride home on the bus—he caught himself up with a jerk and realized she had asked him a question.

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that
is—"

A rustle and a clatter of high-heeled slippers on the polished floor and he turned to see some one else entering
the room.

"Ah, Mr. Travis, Jim wrote me about you—yes," he saw her nod to the other girl in her straight black dress.

She gave him a shy, sweet look of
farewell as she slipped away.

Rosamond Travis sank down in a chair by the fire.

She was weary and fair, with too
much rouge and a drawing, affected
voice.

"Jim's such a funny old thing," she said in a bored voice. "How he stands it back there in Chicago—so slow—I think—"

But Mark Travis after some minutes
found that he must go, and he said
good-by to the girl smoking by the fire
and went out into the rich, spacious hall. Some one was slipping out by the door from another room, and he
saw with a quickening heart that it
was a slight black-clad figure.

He ran down the steps and caught
up to her half way down the block.

"I say," he begged, and she turned
him a shy, lighted face. "I thought,
why I thought you were Rosamond Schuyler all the time!" he laughed.

She shook her head. "I thought of course you knew—her—I'm only her
secretary—"

"Thank God!" he breathed, and then to her astonished eyes he hurried on:
"Isn't it jolly out? The stars and all,
and Fifth avenue at night is great!
Are you going down on a bus? Could
I—"

He mounted the spiral staircase after her and wondered why he had never felt the mystery and allure of the city before. There was so much to do and to be discovered!

"Are you free in the evenings?
Would you care to go out and explore
and eat in a little joint I've found?"
he begged boyishly.

She turned away, for her eyes were
full of tears.

"I thought I was the only lonely person in the city," she said irrelevantly.

"But you haven't told me your
name yet?" he begged.

"Janie Taylor," she answered.

As he let himself into the room that had a pleasantly familiar look he thought, "Funny, Janie Taylor's so much prettier a name than Rosamond Schuyler!"

DIARIST PAINTS A PORTRAIT

Unconsciously Reveals His True Self While Setting Down Record of
the Daily Events.

No man has ever yet succeeded in painting an honest portrait of himself
in an autobiography, however sedu-lously he may have set to work about
it. In spite of his candid purpose he omits necessary touches and adds superfluous ones. At times he cannot help draping his thought, and the least shred of drapery becomes a disguise.

It is only the diarist who accomplishes
the feat of self-portraiture, and he,
without any such end in view, does it unconsciously. A man cannot keep a daily record of his comings and goings
and the little items that make up the sum of his life, and not inadvertently
betray himself at every turn. He lays bare his heart with a candor not possible to the self-consciousness that inevitably colors premeditated revelation. While Pepps was filling those small octavo pages with his perplex-
ing cipher he never once suspected
that he was adding a photographic portrait of himself to the world's gallery. We are more intimately acquainted with Mr. Samuel Pepps, the inner man—his little meannesses and
his large generousities—than we are
with half the persons we call our dear friends.—"Tonkapog Papers," Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Explains Moon Superstition.

The notion that the moon is dangerous while one is asleep is so familiar even in the modern mind that very many people would not willingly go to sleep in the moonlight. Yet science has proved the connection to
be entirely fallacious.

In an old saga one reads a story
which explains the origin of this superstition. It seems that a warrior
who was being pursued went to sleep, and that his changing path caused the
moon to reveal him to his enemies.
Luckily he awoke before they killed
him, and he escaped. But the strain
was so great that he became mad.

The Unwelcome Guest.

"Have scenes of revelry and mirth
been banished from this more or less
fair land of ours?"

"Not entirely," replied Mr. Bibbles.
"There are still some high jinks going
on in residences and apartment houses, but I understand it is hard
for an outsider to gain admittance, even when he happens to be a policeman."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Will of the People.

"Of course, you have a mind of
your own."

"I hope so," replied Senator Sorghum, "at the same time I've got to remember that while I am supposed to make the speeches, my constituents represent the real intellectual authority."

A Kindhearted Bluff.

"Don't you think Reginald takes
himself rather seriously?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne. "Reginald knows he's no intellectual marvel.
He is merely making a generous effort not to deceive his fond parents."

Card of Thanks.

their friends and neighbors, the Knights of Columbus and his business associates for their kindness and sympathy at the death of our beloved husband and father also for the beautiful floral tributes.

Police methods of fighting mobs and carrying on warfare against dangerous criminals who barricade themselves in houses and defy capture may be completely revolutionized by the use of a poison gas that is not deadly. Two hundred members of the Philadelphia Police Department experimented with the gas bombs. All were volunteers. Five war veterans hurled the gas bombs, and many of the cops were temporarily disabled by the fumes. The gas used is "Lachrymatory Gas," the invention of Major Stephen De La Noy, U. S. A. It is a tear-producing, choking, nauseating gas which knocks a man out for about half an hour, but does not leave any ill after-effects.

WHEN FIRE SWEEPS PRAIRIE

Man and Beast Suffer Alike Under Blistering Heat, and the Prayer
for Rain Goes Up.

Hot sunlight, winds as hot, as shimmering heat which distorted objects at a distance and made the skyline a dazzling, wavering ribbon of faded blue, and then the dull haze of smoke which hung over the land, and
without tempering the heat, turned
the sun into a huge coppery balloon
which drifted imperceptibly from the east to the west, and at evening time settled softly down upon a parched hilltop and disappeared, leaving behind it an ominous red glow as of hidden fires. B. M. Bower writes in
"Lonesome Land."

When the wind blew, the touch of it seared the face, as the smoke tang assailed the nostrils. All the world was a void, unnatural tint, hard to name, never to be forgotten. The far horizon drew steadily closer as the days
passed slowly and thickened the veil
of smoke. The distant mountain drew daily back into dimmer distance; became an obscure, formless blot against
the sky and vanished completely. The horizon crouched then upon the bluffs
across the river, moved up to the line
of trees along its banks, blotted them
out one day and immediately established itself halfway up the coulee.

Time ceased to be measured accurately; events moved slowly in an unreal world of sultry heat and smoke
and a red sun wading heavily through
the copper-brown sky from the east to the west, and a moon as red which followed meekly after.

Men rode uneasily here and there,
and when they met they talked of
prairie fires and fire guards and the direction of the wind, and of the faint prospect of rain. Cattle, driven from their accustomed feeding grounds, wandered aimlessly over the still-un-burned range and loved often in the night as they drifted before the flame-
heated wind.

Shoes Worn by Chinese Women.

Many young Chinese women have adopted western shoes, but those who grew up in the days before foot binding was forbidden still wear the tiny,
resplendently embroidered shoes that
have no counterpart in all the world.
Roughly, these shoes are of two types:
one, which has a fair-sized heel made on the shoe for outdoor wear; and another, which has no heel, for indoor use. The latter, however, may be fitted with a loose heel held in position by tapes if the lady wishes to walk abroad.

Value of Education.

The most important thing one can acquire in school is not the information gained but the habit of study established. With a mind trained to study one has the ability to work at the solution of the problems which come up in life. Education gives one comprehension while lack of training causes bewilderment.

WAS TOO FOND OF NIGHT LIFE

Daughter of Roosevelt Rough Rider and "The Rose of Cuba" Escaped From Restraint in Chicago and Cannot Now Be Found.

Chicago.—Somewhere in these United States is a seventeen-year-old miss, a Spanish-American child of romance and adventure, for whom a large fortune is waiting.

Back in Spain an aristocratic old Castilian grandfather is fretting away his last years longing for her, and here in America three wealthy uncles are seeking her to tell her that a fourth uncle has died and left her a great estate.

Helen Owen, the missing heiress, is the daughter of the late Warren D. Owen, a Roosevelt Rough Rider, who won the daughter of Don Esteban Garcia in Cuba in the Spanish-American war. Rough Rider Owen fought a duel for the hand of Senorita Garcia with her proud old father, it is stated by Clyde Owen of Pittsburgh, who is here seeking the girl, and brought her to the United States.

Uncle Leaves Her a Fortune. Since then both have died and the girl has disappeared, after seventeen years of a romantic life as her parents lived before her. The father died in April, 1920, at New Bedford, Mass., and since then the girl's uncle, Edward Owen, has died at Boston, leaving his estate to the young woman.

Assisting the Pittsburgh relative in the hunt are Perry Owen of New York and William Owen of Oak Park, Ill., all wealthy.

"After my brother Warren brought his bride, who was known as 'The Rose of Cuba,' back to the States they lived in St. Louis," said Clyde Owen. "Helen was born there. Her mother died a year later of tuberculosis, and Warren and the child wandered over most of the world for many years. Her grandfather in Spain sent agents to this country looking for her."

"Then, when she was fifteen, they settled down in Oak Park, where Warren was a palatial contractor. She kept his house and had her freedom, and, inheriting the temperament of her parents, was too fond of that freedom to keep out of mischief. She was fond of cubarets, dances and the movies. So I learned she came before the juvenile authorities here."

In Home for Friendless. "The girl's father moved east and died, and she returned to Chicago to be sent to the Home for the Friendless because of her wild escapades. She was given to the care of a Mrs. Condeley, 4516 Drive avenue. She escaped through a window one night and has never been heard of since."

"My brother, Edward Owen of Boston, has died, leaving his estate to her. Wherever she is, we want her to know that we will protect her from the agents of her grandfather in Spain and that a great house, surrounded by six acres of beautiful estate, and many thousands of dollars are awaiting her."

Clyde Owen, who told this story, is an official of the Pressed Steel Car company, Pittsburgh.

FINDS A LABELED TURTLE

Lenoxburg, Ky.—Forty-four years ago J. T. McClanahan, who at that time owned a farm near here, carved his name on the shell of a small land turtle that he had caught. He then liberated the turtle.

A few days ago Peter Sheppard, who now owns the adjoining farm, caught a turtle, and upon examining it closely learned that it was the same turtle on which McClanahan had carved his initials forty-four years ago.

Recently he found another turtle on which Sheppard's father carved his name, John Sheppard, twenty-eight years ago.

The shells of the turtles had been worn almost smooth, but it still was easy to discern the carving of the names.

Duchess Wins Rain "Bet" of Half Million Francs

Paris.—As a consequence of rain Lloyd's of London lost their latest "weather gamble." They will be called upon to pay the Duchess of Devonshire, organizer of the great Quaker Fair, five hundred francs, at the Polo club, half a million francs.

The terms of the bet were stated that all expenses would be paid by Lloyd's if the observation was continued on the top of Ball's tower more than three hundred hours of rain after eleven o'clock in the morning.

At six o'clock at night the rainfall was officially reported at three and a half millimeters.

Ventilation

For the reason of ventilation by means of windows and doors is impossible, a pitcher or glass of cold water placed on a table in the center of the room will absorb many of the impurities. This is especially true in the sick room. The water should be allowed to stand and some steam be kept.

WEST SHORE'S FINAL HEARING

The final hearing in the certification proceedings of the West Shore railroad against the city was had before Judge Herbert F. Roy at Albany yesterday. It was necessary to have the hearing at Albany to obtain some records from the state tax department.

The West Shore railroad is assessed $582,175 in the city. It claims that it should only be assessed $356,000. The proceeding was brought to review the determination of the assessor. Other hearings have been had in this city.

On August 5th the referee will come to Kingston and with the attorneys will view the railroad property. He will also view the various properties in the city which the railroad claims are assessed too low in proportion to the railroad.

Amos Van Etten is attorney for the West Shore railroad and Corporation Counsel Brinnier and Mayor Canfield have represented the city in the proceedings.

SOME STRAIN ON THE EYES

Wall Paper of Colonial Days Truly Deserved to Be Called "Fearful and Wonderful."

The antique wall papers found in the colonial "mansions" of Portsmouth, N. H., marvellously preserved, are too animated for restful companionship. Only a nervous race could have gazed all their lives upon such a monotonous variety of incident.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich tells us that a typical paper, familiar to his childhood, displayed over and over again a group of English country people wearing Italian hats, and dancing on a lawn which ended abruptly in a sea beach, on which stood a fisherman angling for a whale, and wisely indifferent to the issue of a terrible naval combat which was being fought just beyond reach of his fishing rod.

Grander in scale, but as irrelevant in detail, is a very handsome paper on the walls of the athletic club, where we behold finely dressed ladies and gentlemen passing under Virginia's Natural Bridge to get a good view of Niagara falls, and turning from the humorous splendor of an Indian war dance to witness a drill of West Point cadets.

The painted walls of the Warner house, discovered by chance in 1893, present a wide choice of disconnected subjects. Abraham prepares to sacrifice Isaac under the supervision of Governor Phipps, and foreign cities of impossible picturesque stretch before the eyes of fair Priscilla at her spinning wheel—Agnes Repplier in Harper's Weekly.

Overweight Dog.

There is a farmer in Virginia who for a long time good naturedly complied with the requests of amateur hunters for the loan of his dog. Finally, however, the farmer's patience was exhausted and he thus delivered himself to a man who asked for the dog one day: "See here, my friend, there wasn't better water dog living until you shooting gets too to borrowing him. Now his hide is so full of shot that he'd sink to the bottom like a brick."—Philadelphia Ledger.

BOARS MUST GO

French Government Decrees Their Extermination.

Lovers of the Chase Will Regret the Passing of Animal that Furnished Good Sport.

British soldiers may regret the fact, remarks an editorial writer in the Manchester Guardian, that the French government has declared war to the death against the wild boar, but the extermination will be a lively process.

"The British soldier's piquant sense of the foreignness of France was renewed when he marched through Amiens about Christmas time and saw a newly killed wild boar hanging by the heels outside a butcher's shop, with all his dark bristles still on him," says the Guardian.

"Half the French country houses in which our staffs lived had on their walls one or more heads of wild boars killed by the men of the family in the splendid forests of Crecy or Hesdin, where British officers out riding in leisure hours would often see a mighty sow cross a glade or scamp along outside the fringe of the forest, attended by her litter of fast-footed sucklings.

"The noble savage is now to be hunted, shot, trapped and assailed with every form of frightfulness till he goes the way of the bear, and draws back his western outposts into the Black forest and some of the other great forests of Germany, Austria and Russia, where he is still much valued as a beast of prey. At any rate, he has held his ground in western central Europe longer than the bear, who dares not show his nose out of the western edge of the thick forests of pine and scrub in the lower Engadine near Zermatt. The bear, too, had a bad time during his last efforts to sustain further west. One of the last certified appearances of the bear in the canton of Bern—except in the celebrated bear-pit of its principal town—was in 1792, when a formidable specimen settled at the Little Scheidegg, now beloved of tourists, near Grindelwald, and abandoning the seemingly vegetarian habits of his race, ate any sheep he could catch on either slope of the pass.

"He seems to have set up a reign of terror comparable to that of the famous Great Dog of Enderbald in our lake district, but he was at last slain in single combat by a Grindelwald youth, whom he endeavored to embrace and who broke his skull with the butt end of a musket after partly filling him with lead. The victor in this gentle and joyous passage of arms was given 20 francs by a grateful canton. Money used to go further then.

"Our last English wild boar was probably dead before the Eighteenth century was born, though the family may have hung on rather longer in out-of-the-way parts of the Highlands, now happy in possessing likewise the only British specimens of the wild boar. Evidently the wild boar, while he lasted, was very much in people's minds. Witness the names of the taverns, Falstaff's and others, and also his place of honor as one of the four heraldic beasts of the chase and the crest of Richard III. He seems to have preceded the turkey as the staple thing to eat on Christmas day, and a trace of this greatness survives in the custom of serving up a boar's head at dinner on Christmas day in the hall of Queen's college, Oxford."

Spanish-American Art in West.

Experts tell us that out of the welter of noble efforts, saintly aspirations, abject misery and ignominious corruption, another form of ornamental design is appearing that has a character all its own and yet can pass by the name of Spanish-American art. This new form of esthetic activity is proving a fanciful and most artistic character as well as being most utilitarian in its methods of construction. Such is the art now growing up in California, New Mexico and Arizona.

The great southwest playground, in its careless and casual life, is doing America a great service by demonstrating how ancient principles of art and handicrafts, founded on the sternest necessities of economy, struggling against untold hardships, designed house furnishings that combined art with the simplest lines and the most economical methods of construction. It is quite evident that if our housing problems are to be solved in a constructive manner we must realize that there can be beauty in simplicity and even in poverty.

Delhi Capital of India.

Because of its rich history as the fountainhead of power in India, Delhi—not Calcutta, which was then the capital—was chosen in 1877 as the site of the durbar, or gathering of native kings and princes, at which Queen Victoria was proclaimed empress of India. Again in 1903 Delhi was chosen when a durbar was held to crown King Edward VII emperor, and once more in 1911 when George V assumed that title. On the latter occasion the new emperor announced that this ancient city of emperors would be restored as the capital of India and its 250,000,000 subjects.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

POULTRY

COMFORT FOR SITTING HENS

Give "Broodies" Nests Where They Will Not Be Disturbed During Period of Incubation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are several ways to tell when a hen is becoming broody and wants to sit. Soft, downy feathers are left in the nest; the hen stays on the nest longer when laying. On being approached she will remain on the nest, making a chucking noise and ruffling her feathers. When one is reasonably sure that the hen is broody, and her breast feels warm to the hand, she is ready to be transferred to the nest previously prepared where she is to sit.

At this time it is advisable to dust the hen thoroughly with insect powder. In doing so hold the hen by the feet with the head down, working the powder well into the feathers, especially those around the vent and under the wings. The sitting hen should be dusted again on or about the eighteenth day of incubation to be sure that no lice are present when the chicks are hatched. Powder should also be sprinkled in the nest. Sodium fluoride may be used for the purpose, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

When possible the nest should be in some out-of-the-way place, where the hen will not be disturbed. Night is the best time for moving the hen from the regular laying nest to the one she is to sit on. She should be handled carefully. A china egg or two should be placed in the nest, and a board or a covering may be placed over the nest so that the hen will not get off. Toward the end of the second day go quietly to the nest, leave some feed and water, and remove the covering from the top or front of the nest, so that she can come off when ready. The best feed for the sitting hen is whole corn or wheat, or both. Should she return to the nest after feeding, replace the china egg with those to be incubated. The nest should be slightly darkened, as the hen is then not so likely to become restless.

In cool weather it is best not to put more than 10 eggs under a hen. Later in the spring, however, from 12 to 15 eggs can be set, according to the size of the hen.

When several hens are sitting in the same room they should be separated by partitions and should be kept on the nests and allowed to come off only once each day to receive feed and water. A hen that does not voluntarily come off the nest should be taken off. As a rule hens will return to their nests before there is any danger of the eggs chilling, but if they do not go back in half an hour they should be put back.

Examine and clean the nest carefully, removing any broken eggs and washing those that are soiled. Nesting material soiled by broken eggs should be replaced with clean straw, hay or chaff. Nests containing broken eggs soon become infested with mites and lice, which will cause the hen to become messy and leave the nest. This is likely to be the cause of the loss of valuable strings of eggs. When a nest is infested with mites, the hen, if fastened in, will often be found standing over rather than sitting on the eggs.

Eggs laid late in winter or early in spring are frequently infertile, and for that reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time. After from five to seven days' incubation, the time depending somewhat on the color and thickness of the shells, the eggs should be tested, the infertile and dead-germ eggs removed and the fertile ones returned to the hens. This in many instances all the eggs remaining under several hens may be placed under one or two, and the hens from which the eggs were taken may be reset. For instance, 20 eggs are set under 2 hens at the same time, that is, 10 under each hen. At the end of 7 days, at which time the eggs should be tested, it may be found that 10 are infertile or have dead germs, leaving only 10 fertile eggs. These 20 eggs can then be put under the two hens and a new string placed under the third hen.

Liberty and Authority.

While we believe liberty is essential, we must also believe that authority is necessary. But there must be co-ordination between them so that both may proceed together in a compelling force to maintain our social, civic and political order.—Grit.

NEWS OF ORCHARD

HOW TOP-GRAFTING IS DONE

New Growth Should Be Used and Scions Should Be Taken From Most Vigorous Trees.

For many years I lived in the western part of New York state and every spring spent a large part of my time in tree surgery. Top-working seedling apple trees became my job in the community. By long experience I developed methods of my own until the grafts lost did not exceed 5 per cent, and often not more than 1 per cent. Right now is the time to cut apple scions if this has not been done yet, writes H. Wallis Smith in Farmers Mail and Breeze. The best scions are obtained from the ends of bearing branches. New growth should be used and the scions should be taken from vigorous trees where the one and two-year-old growth has reached a size of one-eighth inch in diameter up to the size of a lead pencil. Water sprouts are worthless as scions. Scions must be cut before the buds swell and should be tagged and packed in moist sand or earth and kept in the cellar. Cuttings from quickly growing varieties will do best. As soon as enough sap has started so the bark will peel, it is time to do top-grafting. I never graft a branch that is more than one and one-half inches in diameter. I take the branch to be cut in my left hand and with a sharp, fine-tooth saw, cut it off below my hand. I do not let it fall or sway until cut off entirely as this will split the bark or wood of the stub, damaging it for grafting. I cut a branch here and another there, being careful not to get them too close together. I take two or three years to work over a large tree. A tree should not be pruned severely the same year it is grafted.

When all branches on a tree are cut I prepare the scions by making a slanting cut on one side only, leaving two good buds. A sharp, thin-bladed knife must be used for this purpose. An incision is then made in the bark of the stub and the bark turned up at the corners as shown in Fig. 2. I then cut the end of the scion in my mouth and slip it down under the bark of the stub, the cut side of the scion on the inside, until the bark begins to split at the bottom of the incision.

I put two scions on each stub, then wrap some twine about the graft (Fig. 3) to keep the corners of the bark from curling outward as they dry. The wax is applied as soon as six or eight grafts are made. This wax is made up as follows:

1/2 pint raw linseed oil, 1/2 pound rosin,
1 pound beeswax.

This is melted up together and put into two tin cans with wire bails, the outer ends of which are bent in the form of hooks as shown in Fig. 4. I next take a length of stovepipe, put a hole in one end, fit wooden bottom in the other and nail it on well. A small hand lamp is set into the pipe and the can of wax suspended above it by means of the hooks. This keeps the wax warm and of the right consistency to apply to the grafts.

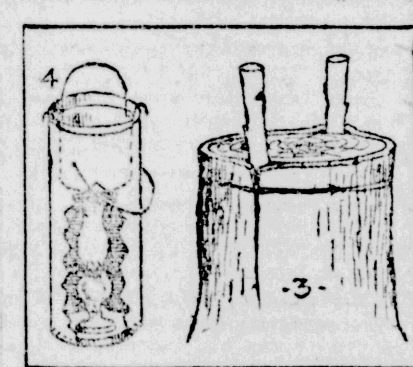

Fig. 3 shows the stock with scions in place ready for the wax. Fig. 4 is the device for heating the wax.

Wax will not stick. I apply the wax with a cheap paint brush to six or eight grafts at a time. While the next batch of grafts are being made the other can of wax is getting warm. Hot wax too warm for the hand should not be used. Put on several coats and cover the entire stub to an inch below the split in the bark. The grafts should be examined about once a week. As soon as they begin to grow the gap in the bark will spread and the wax may crack, letting in the air, which may mean the death of your graft. If any cracks show, close the wax over them with your fingers. About July 1 cut the twine and you are through with the grafts. Keep all water sprouts cut out.

I never split the stub and put scions in the cleft as is commonly done. I believe my method is twice as certain of being successful. If the wax should crack at any time so as to let the air and water get into the cleft before the wound is healed, it will cause the heart to decay and will ruin the vitality of the branch.

"Roar" of an Ostrich.

A lecturer at the London "Zoo" said that very few people knew that an ostrich roared. The roars of an ostrich and a lion were so alike that Dr. Livingstone could never distinguish the difference, save by the fact that the bird roared by day and the lion by night.—Scientific American.

The nationalistic ambitions of the Ruthenians have been encouraged by the defeat of the Polish irregulars in Silesia (1), and they are now occupying the old German battle lines between Minsk and Vilna (2). Revolt is reported in Vilna and Grodno (3), while the entire peasant population in the regions round about are against the Poles. Numerous attacks on Polish troops are reported.

Governor Len Small, of Illinois, who has been indicted by the Sangamon County Ill. Grand Jury, with Lieutenant-Governor Fred E. Sterling and Vernon Curtis, a banker, charged with embezzling $700,000 of the state's funds. The alleged embezzlement occurred during the administration of Governor Small and Lieutenant-Governor Sterling as State Treasurer. The indictments followed an investigation into a $10,000,000 loan of State funds to Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., Chicago packers.

For almost thirty years Arthur A. Irwin, noted baseball player, manager and scout, had two families—one in New York city and the other in Boston. He successfully kept from each any hint of the existence of the other household. This amazing situation was revealed after an investigation into his growingly recent from the S. S. Calvin Austin, bound from New York to Boston. One family, consisting of a wife, two daughters and a son, all grown, lives in Boston. The other, consisting of a wife and twenty-four-year-old son, lives in New York. It was not until two sons, representing the two unions, visited the manager in a Hartford, Conn., hospital a short time before his death that any intimation of his double life was had.

The Opening of a Lily.

The comparatively rare instances in which the motions of plants, such as the opening of buds into blossoms, occur during a single brief period of watching, always give much pleasure to the onlooker.

An English botanist, who has spent much time in India, tells of a species of lily, Crinum augustum, which in an Indian garden opens with uncommon swiftness. Just after a shower of rain in the evening he saw the pink-striped buds of one of these lilies, each about four inches long, on the point of opening. Passing the plant shortly afterward he was surprised to find the blossoms wide open, and in 20 minutes more the petals had curved themselves backward like ram's horns. In an hour the points of the petals had swept over an arc of at least eight or nine inches.

War First in Mind of Kafir.

The Kafir's ritual of worship, such as it is, consists of war dances and wild appeals to the god of war. Throughout these ceremonies there is interwoven a curious thread of Zoroastrianism, and Hinduism, as we might expect, but mainly it is pure paganism and the god whom they delight chiefly to worship is their god of war—Gish.

WRESTLED FOR BIG STAKES

Bloodless Combat Between Sons of Mikado, With the Throne as Prize for the Victor.

The sporting Japanese gentleman knows all the fine points about wrestling. His enthusiasts on this subject are informed enthusiasts, and he inherits them from a long line of ancestors, says Julian Street in Motestors. When the Greeks and Romans wrestled, the Japanese were wrestling too. In the Ninth century the Japanese throne was wrestled for. A mikado died and left two sons, and these, instead of going to war with each other, left their claims to be settled by a wrestling match.

The sport is, furthermore, associated in a manner more or less dishonorable with Shintoism. Certain Shinto traditions are connected with it, and the matches used to be held on the grounds of Shinto temples.

The attitude of the sporting Japanese gentleman toward wrestlers resembles that of the sporting American or Englishman toward pugilists and jockeys. It is chic to know them, but not to equal. One is very gentle with them and at the same time a little patronizing, whereas they are expected to assume a slightly deferential manner. Perhaps the attitude of the Japanese sporting gentleman toward his favorite wrestlers is rather more like that of the Spanish sporting gentleman toward bullfighters, for in both countries it is customary for the wealthy patron to give expensive presents to the hero. But whereas in Spain handsome jewelry is sometimes thrown to the bullfighters in the ring, it is the custom in Japan for the fan to throw his hat, coat, pocketbook, cigarette case or what not to the popular idol, who later sends the trophy back to the owner, receiving in exchange a valuable gift—frequently a gift of money.

"Pa, what is tact?"

Nova Scotia's Sheep Industry.

The sheep industry in Nova Scotia is more than 200 years old, records of 1693 telling of 173,271 sheep in Acadia. The province now ranks fourth among the provinces in the number of sheep, with 200,979, standing second to Quebec in price received for wool. Nova Scotia owes its superior quality to its low shrinkage, as compared with wool from other parts of Canada. The climate on the mainland demands shelter for sheep during the winter months, though on certain islands along the south shore they are out the year around and feed on the sea kelp washed up on the shore. These are the wild sheep descended from those brought in by early settlers. Enterprising farmers on the south shore, seeing that they fed off the kelp in winter, corralled them on nearby islands.

Famous Old London Bridge.

London bridge reached the height of its glory in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when the city built a gate and tower three stories high at Southwark end, and the wonder of London. Non-such house, "a huge wooden pile, four stories high, with cupolas and turrets at each corner, brought from Holland, and erected with wooden pegs instead of nails," reared itself over the seventh and eighth arches, on the north side of the drawbridge. The whole bridge, in those days, was one wonderful street of shops and dwelling houses, with a chapel built or restored "with great splendor." Yet, but a hundred years or so later, the scene is changed indeed. The houses and shops and the chapel are still there, but a hundred years old—Christian Science Monitor.

Independence of Solitude.

It is easy to live in the world after the world's opinion, it is easy in solitude to live after your own, but the great man is he who in the midst of the throng keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Pretty Book Ends.

A useful pair of book ends, made of rich colored tapestry and gold, braided, has a strap on the outside of one end to hold scissors and a paper cutter. Another book end when closed looks for all the world like a cream-colored flower pot full of gay blooms, and when filled with books is just as pretty, showing only one side of the flower pot.

Friction Match First Used in 1827.

The friction match, said to be the invention of John Walker, an English druggist, was introduced in the year 1827. Walker's match consisted of a wooden splint or stick or cardboard coated with sulphur and tipped with a mixture of chlorate of potash, sulphide of antimony and powdered gum. The match was ignited by being drawn through a piece of bent sandpaper.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., July 22.—Violence was indirectly injected today into the trial to remove District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts when armed bandits held up and robbed two private detectives, said to be in the employ of Attorney General J. W. Allen, of papers reported to contain the deposition of "Brownie" Kennedy, former mistress of Mishawum Manor.

The detectives, George E. Kelley and Thomas J. Holmes, believe that a bullet from Kelley's revolver wounded one of the bandits as they were leaving the scene. The man fell but his companions picked him up.

The hold-up took place as the detectives were returning to Boston with papers to be used in Allen's case with Tufts. The detectives encountered a big tearing car blocking the road when they stopped, and pistols were thrust at their heads. The outlaws fled the scene as soon as the papers were obtained.

KILLS WIFE BY THROWING ACID

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 22.—One of the most unusual murders in the annals of the local police occurred here when John Verosky, 27 years old, in a fit of jealous rage, according to the police, tossed the contents of a one-half pint bottle filled with a solution of carbolic acid into his estranged wife's face while she was at work in the beauty parlors of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Thompson at No. 212 Franklin street.

Mrs. Barbara Verosky, 23 years old, the wife, died at the Emergency Hospital last evening. Medical Examiner Dancer said death had undoubtedly been caused by some of the poison which had been thrown into her mouth. Her face was horribly disfigured.

Verosky was captured by Patrolman Thomas R. Eggleston. He was charged with murder, first degree. The young woman made her home with her parents at No. 115 Sherman street. Police learned that the couple had been married in January and separated last April.

POST MORTEM REVERIES.

Painters' Uncover Sign Recalls Drink Dispensary of Quality.

"Come along, I want to show you something I'll bet you never saw before," said a policeman to a Free-Press reporter a few days ago and as the two were standing at the corner of Wall and John streets, near the Crosby building, the policeman then led the reporter to the end of the building being fitted up for shoe concern from Newark, N. J., and pointed out the word, "billiards" painted on an angle on the side-wall back and at the left of the entrance. Wall paper that had been on the wall for two score years had been scraped off by painters and the word pointed out by the cop disclosed.

An old-time resident, who by chance was a listener to the remark by the police officer after taking a look at the word painted on the wall, said: "I've seen that sign before, and I'll tell you fellows about it. Over forty years ago Theron Johnston opened a saloon right here where this store is, just after this building was built and it was a dandy place with the finest fixtures of any barroom in the country. The goods he sold were always of the best and the place had such a good name business men would leave their wives outside while they'd go in and get a nip. Yes, and even some dominies used to drop in once in a while. When the Johnston opened the place he also opened a billiard room upstairs with three billiard tables and the men played billiards then. That sign billiards you see on the wall was alongside a stairway that was built by an expert stairbuilder named Seefeld of Poughkeepsie, and cost a lot of money as Johnston always got the best to be had. The billiard room was finely papered, had steel engravings on the walls and the floor of the big room covered with thick carpeting. George F. Stephen, whom the boys called Snobles, who later managed the Hotel Metropole and other hotels in New York city, had charge of the billiard room for Mr. Johnston, but it was closed after about one year as it didn't pay. A small dumb-waiter connected the barroom downstairs with the billiard room and it carried up the famous Johnston milk punches and Manhattan and Martini cocktails to the billiard players as ordered, they being mixed by Eph Legg the bartender after "The's" formula. Let me tell you boys there are still a few residents in Kingston and vicinity, who, although somewhat affected by the 'Volstead blight, would be willing to take a chance on getting arrested if they could only get one more of those well-remembered milk punches flavored with about two drops of the old Medford rum that had to be put in according to Johnston's recipe."

HOME SPUN YARN.
With soap so comparatively cheap it's queer there are so many homes with squeaking doors and sticking bureau drawers.

Aunt Ada's Axioms: Bringing up the children as they don't know how to work is depriving them of their rightful heritage.

Many persons have learned for the first time this summer that there is no soft drink which can equal a glass of cold milk on a hot day.

If you are bothered with the soap suds hardening and staying in the clothes in spite of rinsing, try having the first rinsing water slightly warm.

Onions are a valuable and healthful food, but the thoughtful housewife who is to have guests whose taste she does not know will not use onions in any main dish.

Home made fruit juices are particularly appreciated during the summer, but they are good the year around. Be sure you provide a good supply this season.

Guitar introduced by Moors.
The guitar was introduced into Spain by the Moors about the year 1288. By the beginning of the Nineteenth century the Spanish guitar had become a fashionable instrument on the continent. Ferdinand Sor, a Spaniard, brought the guitar into great popularity in England with his compositions. He succeeded in banishing the less perfect English instrument, Mauro Giuliani, an Italian, was a distinguished rival of Sor's. Other well-known composers were Legani, Kreutzer and Leonard Schulz. Berlioz and Paganini were guitarists of note.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

Copyright 1921
By ROBERTSON HOFFMAN CO.

What do you know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. I have tried carrying worms for bait to our country place on the coast where they are scarce, but they die. How can I feed them?
2. I have a dozen wild ducks just hatched. What shall I feed them?
3. How should poison-ivy infection be treated?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What do you know about sweet knots? I have found aromatic knots on pine and white oaks.

With no specimen we can only guess, our correspondent means diseased spots (similar to black knot on plum trees) caused by fungi that enter some wound in the tree and cause unhealthy conditions of the wood cells. The latter become irritated and swell in an attempt to smother the foreign irritating substance. Sometimes a gummy substance exudes (as pus or mucus do in animal tissue), and this might be fragrant, due to the ethereal oil in the walls of the wood-cells.

All members of the deer family (males) shed their antlers once a year, at about the season when the young are born. The male is much less aggressive without them, and less likely to hurt does or young. New antlers at once start, looking at first like mere skin-covered knobs. They are full size by August.

3. Is the wing action of the swift understood? I believe it to be alternate and rotary. Is not the flight of the hummingbird, a relative of the swift, also alternate?

Ornithologists differ on this point which has never been settled positively. The majority believe the swift's flight to be alternate. But photographs of the hummingbird poised on whirling wings, do not seem to indicate an alternate wing action.

May 23 Anniversary of Birth of English Journalism

Two Hundred and Ninety-Nine Years Ago Nathaniel Butter Got Out First Newspaper in London.

May 23 was the 299th anniversary of the birth of English Journalism. The first English newspaper was founded in London by Nathaniel Butter May 23, 1622. There previously had been from time to time efforts toward the sale and distribution of news. The Tolingdon, a paper of the Chinese court, enjoyed a continuous issue from the year 713 to 1800, when it ceased publication and gave its name to a successor published in Peking today.

Ancient Rome had its newspaper, the Acta Diurna. It was the organ of the capital, containing military reports, political comment and the latest sport "dupe" concerning lions and Christians. Parents of young Romans used to hide the paper from their sons, who, strange to say, preferred to look at the feminine scandal ads rather than view the actual article always on display along the Appian way. Sporting editions were eagerly bought by business men in the Forum. A record sale was reported the day Rome's pet gladiator, Babinus Ruthless, swatted a full-grown tiger over the bleachers out the Coliseum. Finally, the paper with the rest of the Eternal city fell into the hands of the German invaders and soon after ceased to exist.

There were no papers during the years that followed, but toward the close of the Middle Ages there came into circulation what were known as continental news letters. These letters were unauthentic reports with no fixed date of publication, to which the early correspondents contributed stories of the Crusades, the discovery of America, or the latest anti-Semitic movements in Austria. The accounts were always highly colored and the facts distorted. The publications were never sold. They were read in taverns on the payment of a fixed sum. The writers were not held responsible and the news was little better than gossip. From this source which had found its way into England came Nathaniel Butter's weekly.

Butter's paper was called the Weekly News, and to him goes the distinction of "printing all the news of the day upon a single sheet and publishing it regularly week by week upon fixed days and of giving it a distinctive title at a time when there was nothing that could with strictness be called a newspaper."

It was formerly stated and for a long time believed that the first English newspaper made its appearance in the year 1588. The London Museum contained copies of the old Mercury publications bearing the date 1588, but not long ago students at Cambridge discovered that these papers were forged copies, according to the Columbia Missourian. The type of printing employed in producing these papers was not invented until many years after that date. In fact, it was nearly two hundred years later.

No less a person than King Charles I used the columns of Butter's paper. He was probably the first of that vast army of persons who seek lost dogs through the pages of the public prints. An old copy of the paper contains an advertisement for a strayed spaniel very dear to his majesty. A reward is offered.

Butter introduced the editorial "gee" into the newspaper for the first time. He also employed "newsboys" who were women, to hawk the paper on the street. These news vendors were frequently interfered with by persons who sold the news booklets or pamphlets that came into use toward the close of the sixteenth century.

In his early days Butter was considered wealthy, but through misfortune he lost his possessions. He was a member of the Royalist party in England. He died on one of Prince Rupert's ships in 1649.

VICTIM OF PIRATES?

This is Capt. Willis B. Wormell of Portland, Me., skipper of the five-masted schooner Carroll A. Deering. Last January the Deering drifted ashore off the coast of North Carolina, all sails set and not a soul or even a corpse aboard. The mystery has baffled seafarers for months. Now the theory is that some modern disciple of Blackbeard is practicing piracy. Capture by Bolsheviks is also put forward as a possibility.

Berlin Police Disperse Dr. Goldberg's Followers, Who Had Discarded Their Clothing.

Berlin.—The colony of cave dwellers of Berlin, which took the back to the land doctrine so literally that scores of men, women, boys and girls dug caves for themselves in the banks of the Spree just out of Berlin and discarded all modern wearing apparel, has been dispersed by the police. The colony's leader, Dr. Heinrich Goldberg, argued before a magistrate that the experiment was a simple solution of the housing and cost of living problems.

The cave dwellers began by discarding hats and shoes, but soon decided to do away with clothing altogether, and in this fashion disported themselves in the waters of the Spree or sat about their cave doors munching black-bread and sausages, apparently oblivious to the crowds of sightseers which began to frequent the vicinity.

Dr. Goldberg from his abode in the "Cave of Zarathustra" issued circulars denouncing the Nietzschean philosophy, anarchy, communism, the faults of the present civilization, and asking the rent weary and the work worn to "watch this colony grow."

Somebody spoiled the experiment by complaining that the brotherhood was having a deleterious effect upon public morals and calling attention to the doctor's career, which was said to have included efforts to reform England, Russia and Poland. The colony has disappeared, but its leader has become a familiar figure upon the streets of Berlin, wearing long hair and going barefoot.

Local Color Rags Thrown in Pasture Poison the Cows, Lyme's Embattled Farmers Say.

New London, Conn.—Automobile parties passing through Old Lyme and Hamburg have had their curiosity aroused by signs set up at various points along the road by owners of farms prohibiting trespass on their property "by artists." No objection to trespassing by others is made.

During the summer noted landscape artists from various parts of the United States make Lyme their headquarters, and at the end of the season their work is placed on exhibition and sold in the local art building.

This discrimination against the artists is said to be due to the farmers' contention that they have had numerous cows poisoned by getting hold of paint-enriched rags. They assert the rags are thrown away in the fields by artists who use the rags to clean their brushes and palettes after they have finished work for the day.

Student in State College is the First Woman to Get This Job.

Bozeman, Mont.—Miss Marguerite Lindsay, a junior student in Montana State college here, is the first woman ever to be named as ranger in Yellowstone National park. Word of her appointment has been received here.

Miss Lindsay is anticipating no difficulty in putting out to tourists the beauties and the wonders of the government playground, however, for the summers and the hot springs are so familiar to her as the dripping fountains and the fire pits are to many a city dweller. She is on terms of acquaintance with most of the birds and beasts and knows every hill and valley in the big reserve.

The new ranger's father, C. A. Lindsay, is assistant superintendent of the park and has been connected with the government service here for 25 years. Miss Lindsay has spent every summer of her life in the park.

Rosamond Schuyler
and Jane

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

Copyright, 1921, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Mark Travis thrust his hands deep
into his pockets and began to pace his
room. He had plenty of room to walk, for, besides the cot and the desk in the corner, only a chair impeded his progress. It was an empty room and an empty life, he decided wearily.

"Lonely! It reeks of loneliness!" he
said to the listening walls.

As he turned he saw a square of
paper lying on his floor. An envelope.

A letter. He whisked it up and ex-
right feminine hand in black ink on gray paper. He flipped it open jaggedly.

"My cousin Jimmy Cosgrove has written me that you have come to stay in the city. I should be glad if you would come up to see me; have you some afternoon, perhaps some Sunday at five? Then we can talk over Jimmy and Chicago, where
I lived as a child. Sincerely,

"ROSAMOND SCHUYLER."

Mark Travis read it through twice before he laid it down. He liked the looped black writing and the address
engraved in blue on the gray paper.

"Good old Jim hasn't forgotten me,"
he muttered. "Rosamond Schuyler—
charming name."

He pictured the girl with deep blue eyes and that same earnest look that Jim had.

"How jolly it would be to know someone in New York! To go perhaps to the little Italian restaurant down
on Eleventh street that he had discovered and eat macaroni while the blue
as a background to their talk."

enough to go, and things enough to see, but always alone. No one to laugh with him, nor to make him for-
city.

He had come almost alone to New York—to call it cold—hard—mercenary.

"I'll go and see this Rosamond Schuyler," he said. "What a pretty name that—Rosamond—she'll be
charming."

He threw his shoulders back next
afternoon as he walked up Fifth avenue in a blaze of sunshine. His tweed suit was pretty well worn, but he'd
fair head with an air and swung
along, feeling for the first time that
he was a part of the life of the city.
in Graham & Milner's.

But when he turned east at Fifty-
was an imposing brownstone one, with dignified carvings of cream that shut
off the windows and an air of admitting only the best society, he hesi-tated.

That was the number all right, but
his kind at all.

But he found himself climbing the
steps and ringing the bell as though
he were a dummy. Once he had said
"Miss Schuyler" to the stoic-faced individual who must be her butler, he
knew he was in for it.

As he crossed the thick rug and
came into the dim, beautiful drawing room he read the day he had come.
He was aware of rugs that his feet
melted into and gleaming furniture and
a great armchair, trying to feel at ease and curing his stupidity.

Then he saw that there was some-
one else in the room. A girl silhouet-
ted at the window was playing with
the tassels of the curtain; her slim figure in black and delicately outlined.

Mark Travis forgot the beautiful
room and the luxury and wealth, for
her lashes were wet with tears.

"I'm Mark Travis," he said, rising and taking the hand she held out to
him.

"Oh, yes," her voice fluttered, and
he saw she was rather shy and frightened of him. "I heard about you."

He heard his own voice talking and
then the girl's. She had gray eyes instead of blue and her brows were dark,
and had a charming way of lifting.
She smiled once and he saw a dimple
forgot everything but the desire to
take away that unhappy look about
her eyes.

"Come just come to New York,
have one lamp or two?" she handed the silver lamp on a skillfully and passed him a white cup delicately fragrant.

"Have you been lonely?" she questioned. "It's so hard at first."

And Mark Travis found himself telling her about his work with the old
lawyers and how desolate he had felt,
while she pushed the heavy carved
box of cigarettes toward him and laughed. "Won't you smoke; I like the smell of it."

But in a little while his eyes rested
on the beautiful room, the great
carved mantel that must have cost
thousands of dollars and the long resplendent table with its red lamp.
This girl and he were so widely apart as though they lived in different worlds—he wouldn't ask her to dine with him at a dinner-table restaurant, nor sit with him in the library—
nor ride home on the bus—he thought himself up with a jerk and resolved she had asked him a question.

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that

turned to see some one else entering
the room.

"Ah, Mr. Travis, I'm sorry she
just—"

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that
is—"

shoes on the polished floor and he turned to see some one else entering
the room.

just—"

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that
is—"

A rattle and a clatter of high-heeled
shoes on the polished floor and he turned to see some one else entering
the room.

just—"

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that

A rattle and a clatter of high-heeled
shoes on the polished floor and he turned to see some one else entering
the room.

just—"

"Oh, yes, I like New York; that
is—"

She gave him a shy, sweet look of
farewell as she slipped away.

Rosamond Travis sank down in a
chair by the fire.

voice.

"Jim's such a funny old thing," she
said in a bored voice. "How he stands it back there in Chicago—so slow—I
think—"

But Mark Travis after some minutes
found that he must go, and he said
good-by to the girl smoking by the fire
and went out into the rich, spacious
hall. Some one was slipping out by
the door from another room, and he
saw with a quickening heart that it
was a slight black-clad figure.

He ran down the steps and caught
up to her half way down the block.

"I say," he begged, and she turned
him a shy, lighted face. "I thought,
why I thought you were Rosamond
Schuyler all the time!" he laughed.

course you knew—her—I'm only her
secretary."

"Thank God!" he breathed, and then to her astonished eyes he hurried out.
"Isn't it jolly out? The stars and all,
and Fifth avenue at night is great!
I—"

He mounted the spiral staircase after her and wondered why he had
never felt the mystery and allure of
the city before. There was so much to do and to be discovered!

"Are you free in the evenings?
Would you care to go out and explore
and eat in a little joint I've found?"
he begged boyishly.

full of tears.

"I thought I was the only lonely person in the city," she said irrelevantly.

"But you haven't told me your
name yet?" he begged.

"Janie Taylor," she answered.

As he let himself into the room that
had a pleasantly familiar look he
thought, "Funny, Janie Taylor's so much prettier a name than Rosamond Schuyler!"

DIARIST PAINTS A PORTRAIT

While Setting Down Record of
the Daily Events.

No man has ever yet succeeded in
painting an honest portrait of himself
in an autobiography, however sedu-lously he may have set to work about
it. In spite of his candid purpose he omits necessary touches and adds superfluous ones. At times he cannot
help draping his thought, and the least
shred of drapery becomes a disguise.

It is only the diarist who accomplishes
the feat of self-portraiture, and he,
without any such end in view, does it
unconsciously. A man cannot keep a daily record of his comings and goings
and the little items that make up the
sum of his life, and not inadvertently
betray himself at every turn. He lays
bare his heart with a candor not possible to the self-consciousness that
inevitably colors premeditated revelation. While Pepys was filling those small octavo pages with his perplex-
ing cipher he never once suspected
that he was adding a photographic
portrait of himself to the world's gallery. We are more intimately acquainted with Mr. Samuel Pepys, the inner man—his little meannesses and
his large generousities—than we are
friends.—"Ponkapog Papers," Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Explains Moon Superstition.

The notion that the moon is dangerous while one is asleep is so firmly fixed even in the modern mind that
very many people would not willingly go to sleep in the moonlight. Yet
be entirely fallacious.

In an old saga one reads a story
which explains the origin of this superstition. It seems that a warrior
who was being pursued went to sleep,
and that his changing path caused the
moon to reveal him to his enemies.
Luckily he awoke before they killed
him, and he escaped. But the strain
was so great that he became mad.

The Unwelcome Guest.

"Have scenes of revelry and mirth
been banished from this more or less

"Not entirely," replied Mr. Ribbles.
"There are still some high jinks going
on in residences and apartment
houses, but I understand it is hard
for an outsider to gain admittance,
even when he happens to be a police
man."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

History Reviewed.

Teacher: When Noah had completed the ark and had taken his wife, children, relatives and friends aboard, what became of the wicked people?

Why haven't they taken along?

Young Boyer (brakes his cone)—I suppose they didn't have any stock in the

The Will of the People.

"Of course, you have a mind of
your own."

"I hope so," replied Senator Seeghorn. "At the same time I've got to remember that while I am supposed to make the speeches, my constituents represent the real intellectual authority."

A Kindhearted Staff.

"Don't you think Reginald takes

"No," replied Miss Capewell. "Reginald knows he's no intellectual marvel,
he is merely making a generous effort not to underestimate his food partner."

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Louis J. Albrecht and family
wish to extend their gratitude to
their friends and neighbors, the Knights of Columbus and his family associates for their kindness
and sympathy at the death of our beloved husband and father, Mr. J.
Albrecht, who died July 19, 1921.

WHEN FIRE SWEEPS PRAIRIE

for Rain Goes Up.

Hot sunlight, winds as hot, as
shimmering heat which distorted objects at a distance and made the sky-
line a dazzling, wavering ribbon of
faded blue, and then the dull haze of
smoke which hung over the land, and
without tempering the heat, turned
the sun into a huge coppery balloon
which drifted imperceptibly from the
east to the west, and at evening time
settled softly down upon a parched
hilltop and disappeared, leaving behind it an ominous red glow as of hidden fires. B. M. Fowler writes in
"Lonesome Land."

When the wind blew, the touch of it scared the face, as the smoke lang accused the nostrils. All the world was a veiled, unnatural flat, hard to name,
never to be forgotten. The far horizon drew steadily closer as the days
passed slowly and thickened the veil
of smoke. The distant mountain drew
daily back into dimmer distance; became an obscure, formless blot against
the sky and vanished completely. The
horizon crouched then upon the bluffs
across the river, moved up to the line
of trees along its banks, blotted them
out one day and unapologetically established itself halfway up the coulee.

Time ceased to be measured accurately; events moved slowly in an un-
real world of sultry heat and smoke
and a red sun wading heavily through
the copper-brown sky from the east to
the west, and a moon as red which
followed meekly after.

and when they met they talked of
prairie fires and fire guards and the
direction of the wind, and of the faint
prospect of rain. Cattle, driven from
their accustomed feeding grounds,
wandered, aimlessly over the still-im-burned range and lowed often in the night as they drifted before the flame-
heated wind.

Shoes Worn by Chinese Women.

Many young Chinese women have
adopted western shoes, but those who
grew up in the days before foot binding was forbidden still wear the tiny,
resplendently embroidered shoes that

The sheep industry in Nova Scotia is more than 200 years old, records of 1693 telling of 173,271 sheep in Acadia. The province now ranks fourth among the provinces in the number of sheep, with 200,979, standing second to Quebec in price received for wool. Nova Scotia owes its superior quality to its low shrinkage, as compared with wool from other parts of Canada. The climate on the mainland demands shelter for sheep during the winter months, though on certain islands along the south shore they are out the year around and feed on the sea kelp washed up on the shore. These are the wild sheep descended from those brought in by early settlers. Enterprising farmers on the south shore, seeing that they fed off the kelp in winter, corralled them on nearby islands.

Famous Old London Bridge.
London bridge reached the height of its glory in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when the city built a gate and tower three stories high at Southwark end, and the wonder of London. Non-such house, a huge wooden pile, four stories high, with cupolas and turrets at each corner, brought from Holland, and erected with wooden pegs instead of nails, reared itself over the seventh and eighth arches, on the north side of the drawbridge. The whole bridge, in those days, was one wonderful street of shops and dwelling houses, with a chapel built or restored "with great splendor." Yet, but a hundred years or so later, the scene is changed indeed. The houses and shops and the chapel are still there, but a hundred years old.—Christian Science Monitor.
